HIRED ASSISTANTS.

The most deplorable feature of the strike on the New York Central is the shooting of two men, two boys and a woman at Albany by PICKERSTON'S men.

There is little doubt but that the firing was unwarranted. Third Vice-President

Watts, of the Central, disdains arbitration, yet not only suffers but invokes the aid of Winchester with a good load of lead in the hands of men with a small load of judgment.

It is a serious thing to open fire indiscriminately on a crowd of American citizens, a very serious thing. Such measures as this are likely to create sympathy with the protesting workmen of the road.

Arbitration of this kind is something which Mr. Watts may well regret.

One such outrage as this is more than enough, and steps should be taken by Mr.

Watts to prevent the recurrence of such a reckless defense of the Central's property.

There are some things too bad to be endured, and this is one of them.

THE RIGHTS OF LABOR.

Capital is able to provide abundant means for its own defense. Money can do many things. But labor has nothing but itself to draw on for its protection.

It is hard lines for those whose daily toil is the condition of their existence to be denied every protection. Their one weapon is identity of purpose and consolidation as a unit of action. Organization is essential to such a unification.

Take that away and they are helpless.

No man of reason would deny that where one has a right to something by that very fact he has a right to the one essential means to the securing of that something.

The workingman has a right to his self-defense, and none is possible without organization.

It should be steadily borne in mind that the present difficulty on the New York Central Railroad is due to the attempt of the road to do away with organization among its employees, and the stand which the employees have taken in defense of this right.

Yet Mr. Watts refuses to submit the case to arbitration.

ROYAL THERIFF.

Cautioning in the son of a Queen and the son-in-law of an Emperor is not the most admirable of qualities. The Duke of Edinburgh, son of Queen Victorian and husband of the Grand Duchess Maria, of Russia, opened an Exposition in Edinburgh last Spring. Almost the only service rendered to the public by the Queen's son is opening of shows of this kind, laying corner-stones, and as the public is heavily taxed for these gentleman's support it would seem that they might do little jobs of this kind gratuitously.

But EDINBURGH does not entertain this view. In rendering the bill for this service to the city from which he draws his title one item of $1,000 was for a special train which he did not have, but claimed that he had a right to have had, and hence should be allowed the money that it would have cost.

We have a great many had things in America. But nothing quite so bad as an expensive Duke to support who is mean enough to grab at all the money within his reach.

The fire at the Lion Brewery resulted in the destruction of about fifteen of the

THE WAYS OF WOMAN FAIR.

The wife of Edison has the radiant beauty and features of coloring that belonged to Patti twenty years or so ago.

Cocoa is better than coffee for Summer weather.

Recesses made of blackened iron are hung above antique plates, platters and saucers; the mirror is no longer admired.

Some of the glass ewers, jugs and ornets are as exquisitely enamelled, engraved and etched as the patterns in lace work.

The Summer recifer is made gay by the use of red, yellow or white cuffs and collar facings.

Smart girls who aspire to be whips wear driving coats of grass linen on the road.

This feminine duster is made without a lining, the seams being carefully finished in what is known as a "French seam," so that no raw edges are visible. While shaped to the figure it is yet sufficiently loose to give the arms full play and permit the pretty mistress of a frisky horse to keep him well under control. The double-breasted front has the style intended by the large linen buttons on it; the collar and lapels are finished with rows of machine-stitching, a similar finish being on the sleeves. There are a little high on the shoulders, and have, in addition to the stitching, a button set just above each wrist. The inner collar worn with the gown shows above the coat, and is lavishly trimmed, covering the tank completely. It is worn. The gloves are the neutral heavy ones sold for driving. Patch rockets, with lapels, are on this coat, and are large enough to hold not only one's handkerchief, but the purse that is necessary on roads where a tollgate may be, and where good roads will have to be given before anybody can pass. The woman who drives and who knows it well as well as its delights will appreciate such a coat as this. A driver always wants to look as if she were as well groomed as her horse, no affectation of the picturesque being allowable.

At the seashore hotels white coats or kid shoes are considered the very best form.

Unfortunately they are rare, as only small feet can stand their magnifying influence.

Women rarely think of the dangers run by the men who steal from the sea their beautiful pearls. Not in Ceylon only does the pearl fisher "go all naked to the sunny shark." The great event of the year among the Arab population of the shores of the Persian Gulf and the islands is the diving operations, which extend over one hundred days of the hot season. The pearl take is their harvest, and all classes, from chiefs to domestic slaves, have some interest in it.

Mr. Ross, who resides permanently at Dubai, states in his report on the trade of that district, that, in spite of the abundant harvests of recent years, pearls have been steadily rising in the market, a fact which accounts for the prosperity of the coast folk, who are taking to build larger vessels than of yore. It is reckoned that nearly two thousand boats of various sizes and 30,000 men are engaged in this adventurous industry.

The approaching marriage of the beautiful daughter of the Baron de Mohrenheim to the young Viscount de Seze is made interesting by the connection of both families with the Revolution of 1793. It was the grandchild of M. de Seze who defended Louis XVI. before the National Convention; and it was the great-son of M. de Mohrenheim's mother, Mme. de Korff, who lent her carriage to the King and Queen when they endeavored to escape to Varenues.

For the benefit of ladies living in the country hair dealers have arranged a box of samples from which specimens of crimson and curls are sent. Made-up pieces, such as coiffures and knotted switches, are also sent on approval, at the risk of the dealer.

A comb with three rings attached, through which the hair is passed to make the double eight curl, is certain to be popular, since it is ornamental, very secure when put in the hair, the most convenient method designed for a quick arrangement. This ring comb was in the hair exhibit of M. Stehr, who won the prize was awarded at the Paris

Little Gertrude's Collection.

Little Gertrude, Emanuel, of 21 East One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street, being anxious to help the sick babies, started out to collect subscriptions from her many friends.

For six weeks she kept steady at her work, getting a steady haul, a dime here, a nickel there, and on Saturday she brought $9.75 to The Evening World office as the result of her efforts.

Gertrude was naturally proud of her work and desires to thank those who helped her to get this neat sum.

Her Birthday Gift.

Included $1, which gave credit to the Baby Fund. My papa gave me a dollar for my birthday. I have sent the same to be given to the sick babies, wishing you success. HATTIE SIMON, 32 King street.

Collected from Friends.

Please find enclosed $7.73 for the sick babies from their kind friends on Forty-ninth street, between Second and Third avenues, through the efforts of:

CHARLES MOSS, aged twelve,

MAURICE MEYER, aged nine,

MAUDE SCHNEIDER, aged three.

A Benefit at Stamford.

The Evening World's Sick Baby Fund is to have a benefit under the auspices of Mr.

Gustave Frohman, the well-known theatrical manager.

The entertainment will take place on Saturday evening, Aug. 23, at the Hamilton

House, Grand Central Station.

A varied programme will be offered, and Mr. Frohman has already placed his staff of musicians at its disposal, which will undoubtedly insure a complete success.

Mr. Walter N. Lawrence, "personal business manager" of Mr. Gustave Frohman, will leave for Stamford to do up the arrangements and Mr. Charles Schlimmer, stage manager of Mr. Frohman, assisted by Mr.

Oliver Jurgensen, will be in charge of the stage and the programme.

The Woodstock Club, of which Mr. Frohman is president, assisted by Miss Mary Shaw, who made such a success in a

Dr. of Fashion, Miss Grace Hildreth, late of South Russell, Company; Miss

Joseph Mitchell, Mr. J. J. Brown, son of Mrs. Sol Smith and brother of Robert

Brown, and other volunteers.

Col. Smith, the great landlord of the Hamilton House, has placed his hospitable table at the disposal of the visiting artists, and will provide them with all their want free of charge.

Miss Emma Frohman will also take part.
